However, until you are ready to shine, these best Minecraft mods can keep you floating for some time. Though, you will have to install Forge in Minecraft to run them. Then once your parkour skills are ready, you can even take on some of the best adventure maps for Minecraft. But that's for later. For now, which of these parkour maps are you going to try first? Tell us in the comments below! Bruh this is old how did you find this. All you have to do is to connect to a Parkour server for Minecraft, by copying it's IP address into your client's multiplayer Server IP field. Unlike some MC game modes like Pixelmon and FTB, there are no client-side mods or other special software required to play Parkour - Just make sure your MC client's version and Minecraft Edition matches that of the server you're trying to join. If the puzzles were a bit too much, this parkour map is made to go easy on you. With a total of 40 levels, the map aims to offer you a relaxed experience, with a chilling run spread over 40 levels. There are a variety of mini areas on this map, including a few made for flying with elytra. Thank you for being so loyal to my version of the Minecraft Championship parkour:) Honestly, I only intended to have the map being a copy of the 6th Minecraft Championship. I don't know how much longer this event will exist so I don't really want to become the person who has all the different MCC Parkour Warrior maps, considering Noxcrew changes sections quite frequently. If there is enough demand (in that case please upvote @FizBueX's comment), I might reconsider my position. As for MCC 8, only 3 sections have seen major revamps, with an additional 2 or more minor changes to some jumps here and there. So for the time being, you could also try to rebuild them yourself! As far as I know, all the islands are still correct, so you would only need to change the parkour bits. That shouldn't take longer than 30mins to do:) Here is a video of someone else who applied the changes themselves: For detailed guides, walkthroughs, tips & more, check out. Parkour servers are not just great fun for seasoned experts, but also beginners thanks to their wide variety of maps with different levels of difficulty. Most parkour servers also offer other fun modes such as speedrun parkour, where players must race against the clock to beat the map.
