Of course, when you think of comments sections, you're probably wary: On most sites, the comments are a minefield—populated by "trolls" and overrun with toxicity. So much so that some sites disable comments altogether. And it's true: Reddit isn't immune to vitriol either and has certainly made headlines for the abusive, bigoted things members have said to one another. According to the Missouri Department of Natural Resources, the three R's of conservation are reduce, reuse and recycle. These three R's are different ways to cut down on waste. The first R, reduce, means to buy durable items, in bulk if possible. The less that is purchased to be thrown away, the better. The second R, reuse, means to find alternative uses for the item in question. Lastly the third R, recycle, means to toss those glass, paper and plastic items in the nearest recycling bin to be made into something new. Buying items that are made from recycled goods is another smart idea for waste reduction. What Human Body Parts Start With the Letter "R"?. "This Is Halloween" from 'The Nightmare Before Christmas'. It's Good!: These NFL Players Are Superstars at Giving Back.. . Creepsquad has been banned after publishing a photo of the Jezebel reporter Katie J.M. Baker. This all happened after Reddit retaliated against Jezebel's Katie J.M. Baker, posting a photo of her to CreepSquad that made it to the front page of the subreddit, as BetaBeat's Jessica Roy explains in her detailing of the saga. Baker had written a post about Predditors, a Tumblr, which is now password protected, that sought to expose the identities people posting pictures of often scantily clad women without their consent. Redditors say that site led to the assault of one of its members (they also like the idea of keeping their anonymity), hence the backlash.

China Imposes Trade Sanctions on Taiwan Over Pelosi Visit—But Leaves Out One Critical Item.

Reddit's creeps are losing their Internet war, with the site banning the subreddit r/CreepSquad, which was already a replacement for the recently blocked r/CreepShots, both places for men to upload photos of unsuspecting women. Site admin David Croach has also banned user the moderator of those subreddits, POTATO_IN_MY_ANUS for being too creepy, as Croach explains in a thread on Subreddit Drama: Also r/photoplunder, while slightly different from (but equally gross to) the others, is still carrying on the work of r/photobucketplunder. Two evenings ago, this war escalated when a group of Reddit moderators banned Gawker media because Adrian Chen maybe threatened to expose revered user Violentacrez, who also happened to start the subreddit r/jailbait. These two things are certainly related, as this is about keeping certain content on Reddit without having real people's identities linked to the users posting this content. It's no surprise then, that the anti-Gawker media push was also led in part by POTATO_IN_MY_ANUS, who wrote a tribute to his fallen comrade, where he also mentions the CreepShots drama. Following both events, his advice for Redditors is one and the same: " PLEASE BE CAREFUL WHEN POSTING PERSONAL DETAILS ABOUT YOURSELF ON REDDIT. "

Though Gawker is now banned from 68 subreddits, per the r/BanGawker subreddit, we'd say the creeps are losing this war. Baker didn't seem to mind having her picture up for all Redditors to see. "Flattered that moderators of r/Creepsquad respect me enough to put a photo of me on the main page of their subreddit!" she tweeted. So far, in fact, both Chen and Baker got what they wanted.

Violentacrez is no more, and CreepSquad was taken down after one day on the Internet. It doesn't sound like Gawker writers are losing sleep over their lost page views, for which they still get bonuses, either, with Jezebel's Eric Gloria Ryan tweeting the following: And a few more that are currently
