It costs at least $3 a person to reach loyalists by phone to get them to act quickly about a hot issue. Email has made it easier, but often gets lost in the vast sea of spam. Jed Alpert has honed the process: targeting mobile phones with text messages, which recipients are much more likely to open and act on. It began when he took a program he had developed to promote Britney Spears—texting her fans to ask them to pay to hear tapes of her reading their horoscopes—and rejiggered it for a People for the American Way push to get members to call their senators about John Roberts's Supreme Court nomination. The result, Alpert says, was "the biggest response rate I've ever had for any campaign." Since then, his New York startup, the Rights Group, has worked for the ACLU, Save Darfur, and the John Edwards presidential campaign. "We're getting people involved at one-tenth to one-fiftieth the cost," he says. At the center of everything we do is a strong commitment to independent research and sharing its profitable discoveries with investors. This dedication to giving investors a trading advantage led to the creation of our proven Zacks Rank stock-rating system. Since 1988 it has more than doubled the S&P 500 with an average gain of +24.63% per year. These returns cover a period from January 1, 1988 through August 1, 2022. Zacks Rank stock-rating system returns are computed monthly based on the beginning of the month and end of the month Zacks Rank stock prices plus any dividends received during that particular month. A simple, equally-weighted average return of all Zacks Rank stocks is calculated to determine the monthly return. The monthly returns are then compounded to arrive at the annual return. Only Zacks Rank stocks included in Zacks hypothetical portfolios at the beginning of each month are included in the return calculations. Zacks Ranks stocks can, and often do, change throughout the month. Certain Zacks Rank stocks for which no month-end price was available, pricing information was not collected, or for certain other reasons have been excluded from these return calculations. ESG implications for investment exits are rapidly emerging. We increasingly see valuation premiums for business models and competencies that reflect ESG best practices. For instance, our research has shown that increasing an oil and gas company's share of total revenue from renewable energy from zero to 40% could lead to a doubling of the typical energy company's trailing EBITDA valuation multiple. We work with our companies to integrate, measure, and communicate their bespoke approach to ESG, as we see these characteristics increasingly valued in investment exits. Carlyle Announces Formation of Atmas Health in Partnership with World-Class Healthcare Executives. Value creation and impact are at the center of everything we do. Private equity giant Carlyle thinks its found the formula for incentivizing diversity work. Once we own a particular portfolio company or asset, we monitor material ESG issues and assess opportunities to generate value from ESG initiatives and growth markets. We support portfolio companies to both evaluate ESG issues related to their businesses and develop their own internal capacity to manage these issues and opportunities, if not already in place. Our goal is to provide distinct resources that allow portfolio companies to develop ESG and impact approaches beyond what they may have otherwise: capital injections to upgrade equipment and advance R&D, support from our dedicated internal ESG professionals, connections to leading experts in ESG issues in their sector, institutional knowledge of best practices and reporting, and the leverage of other firm resources including cross-portfolio collaboration between our companies. ESG data is a core tool we use during the investment period to drive value—we track ESG key performance indicators (KPIs) across our investments for issues which are systemically important (such as diversity of boards and management teams), and several of our larger funds also track bespoke, material ESG KPIs for each controlled portfolio company. You can read more about our approach to ESG data here. We strive to embed impact across our investment processes.
