Uncharted: Legacy of Thieves is coming to PC next month.

Here's how much energy crypto mining gobbles up in the US.. . I'd honestly buy a banned console as I have no interest in online play. I just wanna play some Zelda honestly. I'll be buying a switch in the next few months and I'm not worried about being banned or not because their online service lacks a lot and isn't even worth the money it costs. What more information do you want? If you cheat using your Nintendo account, Playing online - You may or may not get account banned + console banned. If you use SYS and run pirates games - Console banned. Console banned means you won't "EVER" be able to play online on your that specific switch unit. But, your Nintendo account is still safe. If you want to do your own homebrew-shit. Do it in Emunand and no problem caused. Looks like you're using new Reddit on an old browser. The site may not work properly if you don't update your browser! I have no proof for this, but my gut feeling is that Nintendo will only ban really egregious hackers, such as people who cheat online or download from CDN. They have no incentive to ban "innocent" homebrew users because that would just deprive them of future eshop sales. They could ban homebrew users as a deterrent I suppose, but if they were going to do that they probably would have started doing it already. They could nip the entire homebrew scene in the bud right now just by banning a few random people. Some people believe Nintendo is waiting for homebrew to get really popular and then do a mass banwave, but seriously, why would they do that? Don't take my word for it, I'm just some guy. But I don't believe there is that much reason to worry unless you do really stupid crap like cheat at Splatoon 2. Is replacing my motherboard an option? I'm not very skilled with tools and if I can't keep my digital games I don't think it's worth it, but I would rather do that than sell my switch Thanks in advance for anything you can do to help. A switch lite cost 200 bucks brand new. Also get a refund that shit doesn't work so you should get your money back. No cause it's already banned, theoretically, you need to change the individual marker Nintendos Server uses. Like the hardware number or serial number. As others did I would suggest calling Nintendo, explaining the situation, and hope for the best. A: Online play is the main thing that will be restrcited once you're banned. This doesn't have any affect on local multiplayer which is entirely different. In my theory, if Nintendo can detect that you've pirated content, they can issue an Eshop ban as well which is what happened to the two devs who used CDN. My guess is that typical bans will only prevent online access, while piracy related bans will restrict both online and Eshop access. However, you will still be able to download game updates and system updates normally even while banned.

Everything else will function as usual so you can still enjoy your games, just not online with others. Skyrim keep crashing when i try to launch it. Any. "I'll just wait til the hackers get things figured out with whats safe and what's not. The 3DS got things figured out and made things safe.". If you do not update your browser, we suggest you visit old reddit. A: Again nobody knows. It can happen any time so don't be surprised when it happens. Hacking a system does come with its consequences. In the case of the 3DS, they took their time analyzing users before they started issuing bans. Perhaps it will be a long wait before it'll happen on the Switch. Or they can begin sooner than we think. They have to manually inspect each flagged case before they issue each ban to users. You never know if you're flagged or not on their servers. Think of flags as a pending case for them to look at when they're ready to inspect it. Looks like you're using new Reddit on an old browser. The site may not work properly if you don't update your browser! Thanks, after a lot of reading and seeing the same question come up often, I felt confident enough to write up a post about bans to explain that nobody knows anything right now about evading bans and what's dangerous. Truth is, there is no answer so it's best to just stay offline right now. I haven't seen any ban related discussions here so I decided to make one. My recommendation. Banned Switches are cheaper, won't help you much on getting another one, so keep that one for your CFW stuff. Get a new one on sale if you can, and do not Hack that one. That's what I did. Also your account is fine, you haven't lost any of your games, progress, saves if you had Nintendo online. I got banned a while now, not regretting all the emulation I've done, specially PSP. Cheers, now you can enjoy without worry, you know you are banned. If you do not update your browser, we suggest you visit old reddit. You most likely didn't use incognito before installing or modifying files on your switch (if you used 90dns, docking the switch could have enough to get you banned) or you tried to make an emunand and didn't set it up properly. Keep in mind that any modifications to the OS on sysnand could get you banned. So it could have been as simple as installing themes, using custom profile pictures, modifying saves, etc. But what's done is done. Can't go back now. Well if you sell it for $100, maybe. Would factory resetting it not solve this problem?. I think it was the console that was banned, as far as I know the account is fine. I randomly get this error after not using switch for 2-. Thanks, actually am gonna sell the banned one. Keep the one you have now and buy new one for online play and eshop games. However, don't get it completely new. Just get the tablet/console itself. You already have joycons, a charger and a dock right? So there's no point in getting another switch with all of those accessories again. I hacked my switch and got myself a new one (console only) for around $170 on ebay. You can't transfer your nintendo account when the console is banned but i heard that some people contacted Nintendo customer service and they helped transfer their account from a banned switch to a new one. You can't go online anymore with that console, period. Buying a new Switch would be the only way. Do we know when Nintendo will start issuing bans?. When you mod your Switch and download sketchy content you accept that there's a risk that your console might get banned. You have to weigh that risk and determine if it's worth it or not. If online play is an absolute must for you, it sounds like that risk isn't worth it. Unfortunately, the only resolution is a new Switch. My switch was banned yesterday for using CFW, and I'm pretty mad. I used it offline and have no idea how they figured it out, but what's done is done. I am trying to figure out to do now. I've heard people will pay a lot of money for a hackable switch, and I'm considering selling my switch and purchasing a new one, as I don't really care about hacking my switch. I have a few questions, though. So my switch got banned from online services, does anyone know how to unban a console or to just be able to play online. and I don't want to use LAN cable as this is only for local use only. Does anyone know how I can access online services? This has been here for a long time and not gonna lie I'm pretty sick of it. I'm just curious, but what info are they using to ban a specific console? If Atmosphere blanks the serial number, it can't be that, right?. Was your system banned as well? If so what did you say to Nintendo?. That being said, if you enjoy a game and you have sufficient money consider supporting the developers by buying it:-). Yeah that's what I think as well, even if they do for a fact know that you hacked your system it isn't necessarily advantageous to ban you, although the recent outrage over Splatoon 2 hacking might be reason enough to adopt a 0 tolerance policy. I've been seeing a lot of bans lately. Does anybody dual boot sysnand and emunand anymore? No incognito or DNS mitm?.
