Not for nothing, Gen X has been accused of skewing white and straight and of overrepresenting white, college-educated twenty-somethings. We strived for some balance with the selection. A famous city that begins with "x" is Xi'an, located in Shaanxi, China. Xi'an is the burial site of Emperor

Qin Shi Huang who built an army of life-size terracotta soldiers, horses and chariots to guard him in the afterlife. The soldiers were discovered in 1974 and have been studied extensively for their artistry and construction; they may provide the earliest example of assembly-line manufacturing. Each soldier has unique facial features and was originally painted in bright colors that unfortunately faded when exposed to light. Among the fictional places that begin with "x" are the mystical city Xanadu from Samuel Taylor Coleridge's unfinished poem "Kubla Khan" and the imaginary country Xanth, created by fantasy author Piers Anthony. Xanth occupies the same area as Florida but exists on a separate, magical plane of reality. Ethan Hawke and Winona Ryder in "Reality Bites." Photo Courtesy: Universal/Everett Collection. Let's wrap things up with this story based on a Nick Hornby novel and directed by Stephen Frears. John Cusack plays Rob, the heartbroken owner of an independent record store in Chicago. Rob and his employees— the brazen Barry (Jack Black) and the knowledgeable Dick (Todd Louiso)— take melomania and musical snobbishness a tad too seriously. But through them, we listen to all sorts of good tracks like "Dry the Rain" by The Beta Band and "Oh! Sweet Nuthin'" by The Velvet Underground. All that while Rob tells the audience about his top five breakups. IE 11 is not supported. For an optimal experience visit our site on
